Galerie Daniel Buchholz at Metro Pictures

Organized by Daniel Buchholz & Christopher Müller

June 29 – September 16, 2006

Galerie Daniel Buchholz in Cologne is located behind an antiquarian bookstore. Sometimes this situation has inspired artists who have shown at the gallery – some have included old books and prints from the Antiquariat in their exhibitions and occasionally artists have presented their work in the shop window and vitrines of the storefront.

In addition to the exhibition and distribution of art, the production of publications have been an important aspect of the gallery. The gallery also organizes events like film screenings and concerts. The exhibition at Metro Pictures tries to represent Galerie Daniel Buchholz through the diversity of the artistic practices of the gallery artists. Many of these working methods relate to the idea of the display or the accumulation of material. Also, the relationship between genres, such as music and painting, writing and drawing, moving and still images and the questioning of their status as a defined discipline appears as a recurring theme.
